

This term's Big Question

As historians, can we explore what our life would be like today, without the Victorian era?

Overview

In this project, pupils will become historians in order to find out how the Victorian period has affected life today. Their task will be to understand why the Victorian period was so impactful and what happened that still influences today's world. They will research, experience and immerse themselves in the period to finally write a piece on how and why the period has had a lasting effect.

Trips, visits and events
We will be having an immersive, Victorian day on Tuesday 24th November for the children to really experience the Victorian period!
